

...for a truly unique wine

Here, when we talk about wine, we don't just mean what's in your glass. Wine is more: a climate, a cellar, a Domain, a vocation, and a passion. It's the color and the aroma; it's your first sip. It's the secret of our trade, and the patience of our craftsmen.

In Burgundy, the twenty-five hectares of Chardonnay vines cling to the slopes of the Roches de Solutré and the Roches de Vergisson.

Millennia have come and gone, leaving their trace on the Domaine de la Croix Senaillet...

Richard and Stéphane Martin have the drive for quality and the eye for excellence.

Over the course of their history on these ancient hills, they have blended tradition with innovation to reach the pinnacle of their craft.

In their hands, the four seasons play out in an oenological sonata to bring forth a truly exceptional product. The aromas flourish, blended together to harmonize the wine's power and subtlety.

Our wine speaks of our origins through an aroma: a tale of lands forgot, a gift, a signature, the respect we give to ourselves, each other and the earth beneath our feet.

To be remembered. To be savored.

GRANDS VINS BLANCS DE BOURGOGNE

The Greater Solutré Pouilly Vergisson Site

A collection of vines...

Here, the earth is more than the ground beneath your feet. It's the hedge and the wall enclosing it, the seasons passing over it, the dew sparkling across it...

This is our history and the stories we tell, the villages and the hillsides under them. These are the defining character traits of a unique personality, crafted by the hands of masters.

Richard and Stéphane Martin have tilled the land according to their belief in organic farming for years, and today are proud to bear the Ecocert certificate. This is a guarantee of respectful environmental practices and strong ethics, but also a commitment to staying true to the local and regional identity.

By digging deeper, these wines unveil the unique features of their origins and offer up truly authentic pleasures.

Here, the earth is a soil, a slope, a plot of land and a receiver of light.

In the end, the earth is what it all comes down to.

The Greater Solutré Pouilly Vergisson Site

The 25 hectares of the Domain are tucked away in this historic landscape which has borne witness to the history of geology and humanity.

Pomona, the Goddess of Fruits and Gardens

In Burgundy, we have been working the vines since Roman times. Here, we worshipped Pomona. Maybe the hamlet of "En Pommards" is a souvenir of our ancestors?

The old deanery

Around the year one thousand, the monks of Cluny founded a deanery at Chevignes to supply wine and other produce to the abbey, a few miles away.

La Croix Senaillet

Benoît Senaillet, a former mayor of the village, planted this cross in 1866. Standing amongst the plots of land, it is rumored to protect those who truly believe.

Jurassic

The lime and clay geology of the region comes from tropical marine sediment. Fossils and limestone abound, and are reflected in the names of our hamlets: Les Chailloux (The Stones), Les Cras (The Skulls), Sur La Carrière (On The Quarry), Les Rochats (The Rocks)...

The Maillettes

The history of this Domain begins here, in 1969. Maurice and Claudia, at forty years old, turned their enthusiasm into hard work to set in motion a wine legacy that is still only just beginning.

Pouilly-Fuissé

These heirloom vines on the slopes of the Roche de Solutré offer up some truly exceptional wines.

Care for the environment

Here, we've replanted hedges around our vines to encourage biodiversity. A great example of this is at La Grande Bruyère.

Les Buis

The limestone in the soil brings mineral notes to the wine, a real portrait of its terroir. This plot was the first to be certified Organic.

The cellar

Built after the turn of the millennium, this cellar takes inspiration from typical Mâcon buildings with a Mâconnais gallery overlooking the cellar entrance. Here, carved into the stone, is where we age our wine.

Davayé

The best-known village in Saint-Véran also lends its name to a small wine-producing area in the Mâcon-Villages.
