Explanation of the name: Frederick II's mother, Constance of Hauteville, was celebrated by Dante as "the great Costanza, who from the Swabians' second gust engendered the one who was their third and final power". Dante underlined her resoluteness on the political scene but also her refinement. She was Queen of Sicily from 1194 to 1198.

Constance of Aragon was the eldest daughter of Alfonso II of Aragon and the first wife of Emperor Frederick II. In 1209, on the occasion of the marriage, she was crowned "Queen of Sicily". Therefore, our beer Costanza was created in order to celebrate the two Queens.
